A cocktail party before the ceremony at Shutters featured a caviar bar sculpted from ice and signature White Wedding Cosmopolitans (garnished with turquoise cherries) and allowed guests to gather and enjoy the summer weather while they waited for the sunset service to begin. Each chair at the ceremony was draped in fabric and fastened with a giant seashell or starfish. Ryan stood beneath a chuppah covered in flowers and shells, while his bride made the walk from one hotel to the other. A choir sang "Isn't She Lovely" as she approached, transitioning into "This Little Light of Mine" when she met up with her father just before walking down the aisle. Heather carried a bouquet adorned with vintage family brooches and was married with her grandmother's ring.

After Heather and Ryan were pronounced husband and wife, the choir led the way to the reception with a joyful rendition of "Love Train." The entire group walked along the sand and beneath an archway of ribbon created by forty men holding eight-foot long batons.
